

ABSTRACT

The present invention is a holder for mixing attachments, including a base member. The base member has a top side, bottom side, and left and right sides. A number of guide dowels are connected to the base side of the base member, each guide dowel with a retaining pin positioned on a side of the dowel. The guide dowels are configured so that an electric mixer attachment may be positioned, one over each of the guide dowels.